

ABSTRACT

In an optical transmission system which can keep a flat pass characteristic within an optical signal modulation band, a spectrum of 5 a dropped optical signal within a modulation band per channel is monitored, and non-flatness for the optical signal is compensated by detecting the non-flatness of a pass characteristic of a transmission line from the spectrum.